

We think you're near San Jose

The Anita Lofton Project plays for free at 12:30 in Union Square September 15

Sona Avakian, SF Events Examiner

September 14, 2010 - Like this? Subscribe to get instant updates.

Add a comment

Like

25

Send

Share

Email

Print

The Anita Lofton Project will play a free noon time concert Wednesday, September 15th and if the weather is anything like today it will be a perfect compliment to her beautiful voice. In case you don't know The Anita Lofton Project is made up of Lofton, who plays the guitar and sings and writes all the songs and violinist Zhalisa Clarke and Wanika Stephens who plays the upright bass. You can check out some of their music here at their myspace page.

The Anita Lofton Project plays in Union Square on Sept 15 at noon

Credits: Byron Mason

Between the three of them they've got some impressive credentials. Anita Lofton is a former member of Sistas in the Pit of the Afro-Punk movement, which is still going strong. She's also played with Mr. Iggy Pop. Wanika Stephens grew up in the church her parents founded, maybe you've heard of it? St. John Coltrane African Orthodox Church you've probably heard of it just referred to as The Church of John Coltrane Yup, that's the one. And Zhalisa Clarke is a classically trained violinist who has been in both the Harvard-Radcliffe and the Brooklyn Symphony orchestras. Phew! I personally can't wait. So grab your lunch, a blanket, a friend and see you there.

Advertisement